Alberta University Adopts Policy of Promoting Its Own

Desirable Graduation of Age Maintained Within Various Departments Pointed Out by President W. A. R. Kerr

General policy has been adopted at the University of Alberta, of replacing senior vacancies by internal promotion where possible and advisable and filling up below with junior appointments thus keeping within the various departments, a desirable graduation of age, Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, president of the University of Alberta, declared in the course of report to the 28th annual convocation of the institution, held on Friday afternoon at McDougall auditorium.

In the course of his address, Dr. Kerr announced faculty changes, with retirement, resignations and appointments.

Total registration for the academic year 1937-1938 was 2,006, an increase of 27 over the preceding year, "probably in accord with the natural growth of the population of the province, a normal rise."

Fluctuations in the various faculties and schools, he said, were not specially significant except in the B.A. which shows a decline.

"It must be remembered, however, that quotas are now attached to entering classes in both medicine and applied science, restricting so far as numbers go, the output of these two faculties," said Dr. Kerr.

TRIBUTE PAID

Warm tribute was paid by Dr. Kerr to Dean W. H. Alexander, the first appointee to the original faculty, who after 30 years of service as head of the department of the faculty of arts and sciences, has resigned his position as dean of the faculty of arts and sciences.

"Not only over all this long period has Dr. Alexander been a popular and inspiring teacher and efficient administrator, but he has

Electric Light, Telephone Services Suffer Big Gale Damage

Roaring through Edmonton early Thursday afternoon an 80-mph five-hour gale which reached cyclonic proportions caused damage running into thousands of dollars and temporarily discontinued electric light and telephone services, according to damage reports available Friday.

Four citizens were injured by storm sweeping. Mrs. Christina Sigmond, 9638 10th street, escaped reader in Merck's Coffee Shop in the McDougall building, was removed to the General hospital with painful cuts around the face and neck inflicted when two plate glass windows in the shop crashed in. She was recovering Friday.

Minor injuries were also suffered by a woman employee at Swift Canadian Company Limited when a window was smashed, and a Highlands school pupil, who was hurt in the same way.

At Totfield the gale blew the roof of a five-room school house and carried it to a field a block away. Principal O. F. Thomas reported that no children were hurt, and that it would require a week to make repairs.

Blowing the city out for a period of about 15 minutes from approximately 1:15 to 1:30 p.m., the gale brought rain, hail and snow. And when the gale had diminished electric light and street power poles were down in all parts of the city; sign-boards were

ANGLO-CABINET SHAKEUP NOW LOOMS LARGE

Resignation Of Air Secretary Swinton Expected Soon

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON, May 13—Cabinet changes are impending. The number of peers at present in the cabinet and the sharp swing in the balance of the house of commons on the air ministry yesterday lead to the conclusion that a shake-up cannot long be delayed.

Resignation is mooted for Viscount Halifax, secretary for air, who, for a long time, has been object of a protest against a council of state composed of party leaders to speed up air rearmament, suggested.

The government's announcement that Great Britain's air strength is to be doubled failed to satisfy its critics. They all want notice of a motion to be discussed Thursday called for a "complete, efficient, independent inquiry conducted with dispatch under conditions consistent with the necessities of the war."

The motion is so drafted that Conservative opposition is without censure of the government.

CONSERVATION TURNER GAS IS REAL PROBLEM

R. A. Brown, Of Brown Oil Corporation, Reports Big Wastage

Conservation of Turner Valley gas flow is the most important problem confronting operators in that field, was the opinion expressed by R. A. Brown, Calgary, president of the Brown Oil Corporation and Turner Valley Royalties, who arrived in Edmonton Thursday to attend the University of Alberta Convocation.

More than two hundred million feet of gas is wasted annually through gas flow from old pipelines, he stated. This means a loss of approximately $75,000,000 annually. A waste of natural resources which would not be tolerated in any other country in the world.

PAYS TRIBUTE

Mr. Brown praised the extensive work done by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, in bringing into being conservation of the gas flow in the Turner Valley field. He said it should have the co-operation of all engaged in the industry. This conservation would remove the flow of large crude oils being produced on the west flank of the field, be stated.

This, stated Mr. Brown, was vitally necessary, because if the

Automotive Transport Association Presents Submissions To House

OTTAWA, May 13.—Provision in the transport bill for agreed charges—a rate a carrier gives a shipper on contract for all or part of its product—was introduced in the House of Commons today.

Lewis Duncanson, K.C., of Toronto, representing the Canadian Automotive Transport Association, made the statement as he closed his testimony on the bill of Hon. C. D. Howe, transport minister, to extend jurisdiction of the board of railway commissioners to aircraft and extend forms of water transport.

LAW OF JUNGLE
Speaking earlier for the Canadian Automotive Transport Association, M. J. F. Fawcett, K.C., called the proposal to legalize agreed charges "a reversion to the law of the jungle."

"It is the jungle of competition," Hamilton and Toronto, said. "The law of the jungle is competition. The agreed charges provision is a reversion to the law of the jungle."

Their Great Day

As usual on such occasions, the 138 young men and women who graduate today from the University of Alberta will, along with their certificates, get much advice of one kind and another, from many quarters, on many subjects; and will, like countless predecessors, treat it with an indulgent smile if not with impatience. On Convocation Day life is radiant with hope and the chilling logic of age and experience sounds dry and oppressive.

Men and women of ripe years would be pleased by nothing more than seeing these graduates, aglow with the spring-time of life, continue to cherish their ideals and making their dreams come true. But they surmise this will not happen in full measure. The laws of life are stringent, less equitable and less wholesome than the discipline of the classroom.

The graduates are leaving a place where prizes are awarded to those, and those only, who have earned them, where poverty does not penalize beyond redress, nor wealth bring prestige beyond merit. The world distributes its honors with less justice.

The test of culture comes in facing the world's rebuffs and bearing its whips and scorns with serenity. Only the weak go sour. Those worthy of the academic tradition will realize that if the ideals of their university are not accepted in the marketplace, the fault is not with the ideals. They will seek to make prevail as much of their light and hope as in this life.

The virtue of courage, as Barrie told the Scottish students in his rectorial address, remains the felicity of university men and women. May each Alberta graduate leave Convocation with that staff in hand, never to falter or weaken in the pilgrimage of life.

Sniping At The CBC

Canada's Broadcasting Corporation was told the other day what some members of parliament think of it and would like to do with it, or to it. What the criticism lacked in consistency it richly made up in variety.

The fusillade started with a complaint from one corner that the Government is muzzling the Corporation; and wound up with a complaint from another quarter that the Corporation is allowed another too much latitude, even to the disturbance of international relations.

To be fired at from both sides means that the Corporation is keeping fairly well in the middle of the road, which a public broadcasting system must do to survive. The directors and staff may therefore be in the cross-fire of criticism evidence that they are suiting the purposes neither of the reactionaries nor the radicals. It is the great mass who belong to neither the one wing nor the other who pay the bulk of the listener license and deserve consideration—which the extremists seem to think they are getting.

Prime Minister King announced during the debate that attacks on the foreign policy of Great Britain or of friendly nations will not be permitted on the Corporation's network. What exactly this means time will show. For the present the assumption is that Mr. King said precisely what he meant; that "attacks" are barred. It does not follow that expressions of opinion are to be barred. There is a distinction, not easily defined but quite easily apparent to a balanced mind, between expressions of opinion and overt "attacks".

It surely cannot be the intention to forbid the air to qualified persons who present informed and unmalicious views of the foreign policies of any or all countries. That would be unreasonable and indefensible, and far from prudent at a time when these foreign policies—and implications—are threatening to precipitate another world war.

Only A Gesture

Britain and France gained no glory and got no thanks for defending the non-intervention committee at Geneva. They met with a rebuff, in that the Council of the League—against their wishes—gave the spokesman of the Spanish Government another opportunity to make a final presentation of its case.

If Chamberlain and Daladier hoped to lead the Council along the line of their "appeasement" policy, they did not succeed in this attempt. Yet that is the line the Council will follow. The Council has no intention in the world of renouncing the non-intervention arrangement and thereby rousing the anger of Hitler and Mussolini. Nothing is more certain than that.

The non-intervention committee is not a British-French committee, nor the non-intervention policy a British-French policy. The policy was adopted and the committee set up by international action, in fear that a general war might result if the Spanish factions were allowed to buy munitions freely abroad.

Italy and Germany having refused to be bound by the arrangement, the other parties to it are entirely willing that Britain and France should stop these countries sending men and munitions to Franco; but they have no notion of doing any of the stopping themselves. They are quite prepared that Britain and France shall be blamed for the break-down of the plan, but they have not the remotest impulse to incur the enmity of the dictators on their own account by trying to enforce the agreement—or by abandoning it and selling arms to the Government of Spain.

Whatever responsibility rests upon Britain and France is shared by the other countries which joined them in declaring there should be no intervention in Spain, but which took no risk to make Italy and Germany comply. The Council may listen politely to Senor del Vayo, but it will not repudiate the non-intervention committee—and thereby invite the wrath of Berlin and Rome to fall upon the countries which have supported an arrangement so much to the satisfaction of Franco's allies.

Editorial Notes

Maybe the way to outwit Pete the Pants Burglar is to sleep in them.

Quebec police have made 124 raids under the padlock law, seized some tons of newspapers and books, and locked up six officials, shops and schools of revolution. Communism, it is to be supposed, has now been banished from that province. Or has it only been banished from sight?

Senator Borah says Britain and France "betrayed" Ethiopia. Next the Senator might favor us with his opinion of those Senators who kept the United States out of the League of Nations, and thereby set the stage for the destruction of Ethiopia, Austria and Spain, and the chaos into which the world is staggering under its unapparent weight of armament.

When he tried to join the Mounties a Hamilton lad was turned down because he is so big. Twenty years old, he stands on the wayward world from an altitude of six feet five inches, and has 226 pounds of physical persuasion to back up orders to the erring. That recruiting officer has no imagination. Against a background of Pyramid Mountain that young chap would loom up, like a million dollars' worth of free advertising for Jasper Park.

Destroying Coffee

Sometimes thoughtful housewives who read the newspapers have been a little puzzled, when their grocer tells them the price of coffee, to remember that there in Brazil they are busy heaping the stuff on to bonfires. According to reports from Rio de Janeiro, the Brazilians are stoking up the fires again for a new coffee-burner spree. The National Coffee Department is proposing to buy and destroy 30 per cent of the 1933-34 crop, or about 7,500,000 sacks. Of last year's crop 70 per cent has been burned.—Montreal Star.

The Air Mail

The organization of Canadian air mails has been made almost literally from the ground up. Personnel, equipment, stations, method—all have had to be devised in relation to the complete transcontinental service. For many weeks now, for the training of all hands, slow and aloft, there has been an experimental daily service between this city and Winnipeg.

The justification of going slow was going through. If All-Canada Air Mails proves efficient when we get it, there will be no more complaints for the slowness of its coming.—Vancouver Province.

British Wages Increase

One feature of the (British wage) increases will give special pleasure. The agricultural workers are a bit better off than the rest of the country for a long time, and they still bear it. But slowly they straighten their backs, and the more they straighten their backs, the more they straighten the nation's wealth. Remember, however, that there are miles to go yet before the working families of this country are paid the money they need for a full life. Even last year the rising cost of living followed hard upon the increase in money wages, and this year the increase in money wages has been followed by a corresponding increase in the cost of living. Now would you find that the national income is being shared very unequally. A comparatively few people are still taking what more they need and far more than they earn, at the expense of the millions who share what is left. How soon we reach the Britain of justice and plenty depends mostly on two things: the strength of the Labor Party, and the strength of the trade unions.—London Daily Herald.

More Power to Gerry McGeer, M.P.

Mr. G. McGeer, Liberal M.P. for Vancouver, spoke his mind about Ottawa to the Women's Press Club the other day. The Canadian Capital, he said, was a "terrible example of inefficiency, indelicacy and national slovenliness." It was "a terrible looking city" and "an awful place to look around." As a national capital, it was a great deal of "a definite move to beautify Ottawa."

Now, we do not agree, not by any means, with all Mr. McGeer said—but we commend him for saying it, would welcome similar onslaughts from other members of Parliament, because thereby the hands of the Government would be strengthened in implementing its plans for improvement of the Capital, and we would have some verbal violence, some exaggeration, in so good a cause.

There are things about Ottawa all of us would like to see changed. There are dirt rows of unimproved residences and business places, there are buildings that never were beautiful and now are incredibly ugly, that have grown old without dignity. We have built many fine buildings, sometimes built well in the wrong places. We have missed opportunities. We have shown, sometimes, an extremely short memory. But why has not?

Nevertheless it is true, as Mr. McGeer suggests, that more is expected of a capital city. It should worthily provide a setting for the many and mighty of our nation's affairs, as an example and an inspiration to other cities. And that is the objective towards which successive governments of Canada have been working for the past four decades.

It is true, of course, that there would be better, of course, had an earlier start been made, but in the infant days of Confederation there were no funds, and it was not until 1900 that we began to do things that seemed more urgently needed than that the capital be a lamentable, was very natural.—Ottawa Journal.

Gardiner and Implement Prices

Hon. J. G. Gardiner holds that the complaints about the price increases for farm implements are warranted. It is costing the companies less, he says, to deliver a binder to a western farmer now than it did in 1922, but the price is higher. This he attributes chiefly to unnecessarily heavy coats of management and of the selling organization.

Drift reductions in former years were invariably followed by lower prices for farm implements, the minister of agriculture states, and he holds that the two increases that have come about in the last half year are the result of the sense of price competition between the manufacturing companies and a definite price-fixing system.

For these reasons, the farmers are compelled to pay more than they should for these important implements of production. Mr. Gardiner states, he speaks strongly for a government intervention may do if the companies do not co-operate in a different spirit. He compares the very large increase in farm implements in Canada with the 1929 employed by the implement manufacturing companies.

"The industry has paid no attention to the complaints of farmers and no warnings of the committee," he says. "If they realize that government action should be taken which they would fully understand and appreciate." He says that he "would prefer to see the law of supply and demand operate through competition to keep prices reasonable rather than depend upon price-fixing by governments." But he remarks that the law of supply and demand does not work under tariff protection. The evidence before the committee has shown that there was plenty of competition in trying to sell implements, but no real competition in prices.

With the cost of materials, labor and freight which has been so high, it is not surprising that for present retail prices. Quoting from the evidence obtained by the committee, he said that the actual cost of delivering a binder to a farmer in 1929 was $12.74. But the price to the farmer was higher in the latter year, because the markup

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—Mrs. F. W. A. inquires: "I have a friend with high blood pressure. She is 70 years old and the pressure goes as high as 180. I was told that if she would eat half a lemon just before going to bed every night, that this would cure her high blood pressure. Is this true?"

ANSWER: In the face of such a high blood pressure, the taking of the lemon as described, would not be sufficient to lower the blood pressure.

QUESTION—E. B. writes: "I have been a trifle near-sighted and can not pass the vision test to receive a driver's license. Do not feel like wearing glasses. I can see pretty well except for the fact that I can not read as far as I should. Can you give me any exercises to improve the vision?"

ANSWER: Near-sightedness is due to a defect in the shape of the eyeball and I do not believe that this defect may be remedied by the wearing of glasses. However, an article on "Eye Exercises" which outlines some exercises that strengthen the muscles moving the eyes. This article will be sent to anyone desiring a copy who will send me and enclose a large self-addressed, stamped envelope. The exercises are too long to be printed in this space. You may order a copy of the article for 25 cents. I can not promise that they will correct the myopia. Probably the best solution in your case, especially if you wish to receive your operator's license, is to wear glasses. It is better to comply with regulations and have the eyes fitted with lenses, to be worn while driving.

was increased from $36.83 in 1932 to $79.26 in 1936. If the business and financial set-up of the implement industry required the present prices, the government might have to assume greater control over the organization of corporations.

As a means of reducing the heavy distribution costs resulting from each company having a large selling and collecting force in the field—with a number of agents in every little town—the parliamentary committee recommended that the companies themselves should make every effort to reduce these costs or farmers should be encouraged to organize for the co-operative distribution and servicing of farm implements.—Regina Daily Star.

The By-Elections in Britain

The Chamberlain Government is to be another by-election. This time it is in Lichfield, a constituency in the Midlands of England, with a population comprising a cross-section of English rural life. Part of the rural life borders on the potteries and it stretches out into the pleasant spaces of rural Staffordshire. The labor population, however, predominates, and the candidates came from that section of the electorate.

This is the third by-election the Chamberlain Government has had since it came to power. It has virtually taken over the reins of foreign policy. Despite therefore the comfortable majorities which his policies have received in votes in the House of Commons, the Chamberlain Government has been appealed to, have by varying figures rejected them. Another by-election came in the form of a by-election in Lichfield, a rural riding in Buckinghamshire, not far from the suburban fringes of Greater London. It does not contain a very large labor vote but it has not been a very large labor vote. In the three ridings which have been the scene of the by-elections that have gone against the Government, there has been a large working class electorate; so it will be interesting to see the reaction of the Liberal voters on this occasion.—Saskatoon Star Phoenix.

Motorcade Is Now On Its Way To Protest Cut-off On Highway

Engineer Tradition Behind New Unit Of Edmonton Garrison

9th Army Troops Company, R.C.E., Enters Second Year Under Major F. K. Beach

Although it does not share the historic prestige of some of the other units of the Edmonton garrison, the 9th Army Troops Company, Royal Canadian Engineers, has the traditions of the R.C.E. behind it, according to Major F. K. Beach, officer commanding the unit now entering its second year.

In an interview with The Bulletin, on Friday, Major Beach admitted the young unit could not lay claim to the prestige possessed by others, unless it could be considered a successor of the 8th Canadian Railway Troop, a part of which was raised in Edmonton as the 218th Battalion.

TELEVISION
However, as a unit of the Royal Canadian Engineers, it has a tradition, second to no arm of the service, back in the days when soldiers fought hand to hand with spear and sword, a part of the army was told off to construct engines of war to be used in breaking down the walls of cities. The specially trained men, with their tools and machines such as "cranes" were termed "Engineers," he said.

"As time went on the 'engines,' which took the form of batteries, road and rock-thriving devices, were displaced by other weapons, explosives to hurl projectiles. When the war was fully under way, they were to become an article of store, the operation of them was handed over to a child of the engineers, which took the name 'Artillery'."

DEVELOPMENT
This child now forms a larger force numerically than the parent, but the coming of age of the child and independent existence did not end the father's role. Signals were developed in a high state of efficiency by the engineers, and when sufficiently specialized, standardized and its apparatus altered, it came to be known as an independent existence.

"For a time, all bridging was a function of Engineers. Then they developed a type of footbridge which could be issued as an article of store, ready for use in any event without the use of special tools and technically trained men at the site. Then the army as a whole began to be handed over to the artillery."

SAFEGUARDS
"Similarly, anti-aircraft, searchlights, until recently the function of Engineers, have been sufficiently standardized so that their use has been handed over to the artillery."

"These are not a few highlights of the outgrowth from Engineers. The parent has not only been independent, it still is made of men skilled in the use of tools of all kinds, who can improvise the work and devices needed in emergency by the unit. In a single Army Troops Company are assembled all the trades, carpenters, blacksmiths, tin-smiths, machinists, electricians, and so on, to correlate tasks, draftsmen to do designing work, surveyors, etc. "A mobile workshop is provided on active service and trucks for taking the tools of the unit to the places where they are needed. On placing the trades, tools and transport of the unit, the unit comprises a civilian organization is to the engineer's outfit."

OTHER TYPES
"There are other types of engineer companies which might be compared with factors for modernization, sawmills, railway construction and operation, etc. And just as engineers do construction work, they are trained in mining work, explosives and explosives, and their work. Anti-tank weapons are not the article of store, they are used by engineers, although these are sufficiently standardized so that the cavalry are allowed to handle them also."

The 8th Army Troops Company is Edmonton's only engineer company, and is one of only two engineer units in the province.

SERVED WITH CORNWALL
Major F. K. Beach joined the 4th Field Troop in Calgary early in the war and received his military training in that unit. He later went with the 1st Field Troop (infantry) and when that unit was merged with the 218th Battalion to form the 9th Army Troops Company, he was transferred with it to France, serving until the end of the war as an officer. He has, however, been commanded by Lt.-Col. J. C. Cornwall, D.S.O. Since the war, he has been identified with the 18th Field Company at Calgary, as second in command and later in command of the unit.

Capt. W. F. Cornish is second in command of the unit. He is a graduate of the University of Electrical Engineering at the university. While attending the University of Manitoba, he commanded a company in the C.G.C. unit.

Lieut. H. M. Hardy, another officer, is a professor in the Civil Engineering department at the University. E. P. K. is a graduate of the University in Civil Engineering, 1937, and is an enthusiastic officer. He is a graduate of the University of Manitoba, and is a mining engineering student, and is a member of the faculty of the University of Manitoba.

The company trains on Wednesday nights at the Prince of Wales Armouries and will be in camp at 1000 hours in August at Prince of Wales, B.C.

ORANGE GRAND LODGE HOLDS FINAL SESSION

Asks Government Reconsider Closing Governor's Residence

Elected by acclamation, Alex D. Truett, of Edmonton, who acts as deputy grand master at the sessions of the 36th annual convention, just closed, was installed as grand master of the Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Alberta for the coming year. James Davidson, of Calgary, was elected deputy grand master, and W. L. Hall, of Calgary, was selected as grand secretary.

Resolutions were adopted dealing with a Canadian flag and radio broadcasting. The Grand Orange Lodge reaffirmed its opinion that the Jack should be the predominant feature of any Canadian flag. Any sectional emblem should be avoided, but a national emblem, such as the beaver or maple leaf, would be acceptable, it was stated.

RECESSION
Recessive use of French in radio broadcasting was a subject of the bilingual announcements are permitted. "Such announcements should be made in the English language," a resolution suggested.

DISAPPROVE ACTION
Expressing strong disapproval of the action of the government in regard to maintaining Government House as a residence for the governor, a resolution was passed for reconsideration of this matter.

The lieutenant-governor being the direct representative of the King, it is felt that refusal to maintain this office in a suitable manner shows disrespect to the crown, and a resolution was passed to reconsider its decision.

Other officers elected and installed by the convention were: Lee Davidson, grand master; Alex D. Truett, grand secretary; R. E. Jones, grand treasurer; N. St. John, grand chaplain; D. A. Taylor, grand clerk; R. E. Jones, grand secretary; R. E. Jones, grand treasurer; N. St. John, grand chaplain; D. A. Taylor, grand clerk.

Rev. W. S. Brooke, Winnipeg, was elected grand grand chaplain. W. G. Walcott, Edmonton, was elected grand secretary, and W. W. Gaskard, Calgary, deputy grand clerk.

Installation of officers was conducted by W. Darby, past grand master, assisted by A. E. Williams, past grand master, acting as grand marshal.

NEXT MEET CALGARY
During the convention the lodge received advice of the death of J. C. McKinnon, of Calgary, a member of the Grand Orange Lodge and one of its charter members. A tribute also was paid to the late J. C. McKinnon, who died in September. He was elected grand master at the session in Calgary last year.

Delegations were received from the Grand Lodge of the Ladies' Benevolent Association and Junior Grand Orange Lodge. The Junior Grand Orange Lodge of the West gave a review of their work. Thursday's session ended the two-day convention.

Next annual session of the lodge will be held either in Edmonton or in the second week of April, 1939.

Presentations were made to A. E. Williams, past grand master, on behalf of the lodge on the occasion of his recent marriage.

Delegates Speed To Edmonton for Follow Interview

Representatives of Towns on No. 1 Highway Will Arrive in City Today to Protest Re-Routing Proposal

DIDSBURY, Alta., May 13.—Alberta's number one highway, the Edmonton-Calgary "direct route" will be the subject of protest when a delegation from Didsbury and adjacent towns meets Hon. W. A. Falloon, minister of public works, in Edmonton today.

Re-routing of the highway to miss the towns of Didsbury, Innisfail, Olds and Carleton Place, has been proposed. Protests have been made at recent town meetings and a formal complaint was made to Mr. Falloon personally when he visited Calgary April 29.

OTHERS JOINED
From Didsbury, 50 miles north of Calgary, a motorcade headed by Mayor H. W. Chambers and a group of citizens, left Didsbury this morning. On the 10-mile drive to Edmonton other motorists joined the delegation. The delegation will be met by the mayor of Edmonton at the city hall.

At present the highway runs through the towns but, under the new survey for the "direct route," the road would pass to the east, avoiding the towns of Didsbury, Innisfail, Olds and Carleton Place. The new route would mean loss of business, especially during the summer tourist season.

APPOINTMENT
The delegation will meet the town's representatives in the capital's legislative building at 2 p.m. today. The delegation is expected to hear the delegation; the minister of public works is expected to hear the delegation; the minister of public works is expected to hear the delegation; the minister of public works is expected to hear the delegation.

JOBLESS TOLD TO SEEK HELP FROM PROVINCE
A delegation from the Western Federation of Unemployed was advised by Mayor J. W. Fry that the province would make further representations to the provincial government regarding their relief allowances, and also advise their membership in the province.

Mayor Fry stated the delegation that he would make inquiries into their plight, but that as far as he could see the matter was one of provincial responsibility.

Mr. Fry stated that he would under all men struck off relief would be reinstated when they comply with provincial relief regulations.

He advised them also to seek hearing of their grievances by the special relief committee appointed at the last session of the legislature.

Security Tax Forms Ready For Mortgagees

Forms for the registering of mortgages in the form of first, second and third mortgages subject to taxation under the Securities Tax Act passed at the last session of the legislature have been prepared and are available to the provincial treasurer's department, banks, brokers and other institutions.

The tax is of two per cent and is estimated to yield $100,000. The tax is payable by June 1 and application for exemption from payment must be made by that date.

Northland Echo Leaves McMurray With Big Cargo
McMURRAY, May 13.—Carrying 100 tons of cargo, a crew of men who will work on the Portage between Fitzgerald and Smith, eastern towns of the province, left McMurray for the north on the Northland Echo today.

The McPhersons' tug Norma arrived in Portage today, stopping at Lehman's. The tug is the property of the Portage and is a good considering the dry season, but expect increased tonnage from the Portage as the summer progresses. The boat is expected to be in work on Lake Athabasca this summer.

Meanwhile there is more freight piled at McMurray waiting to be shipped to the north than in the history of the north.

HARRY COOK IS DEATH VICTIM OF TRAFFIC MISHAP

First traffic fatality of the year, Harry Cook, of 837 10th street, junior at the University hospital late Thursday morning as a result of injuries received in a traffic occurrence last Saturday.

Police reported that Cook was known to have been at 115 p.m. Saturday last when his friend struck a street car at the intersection of 10th street and 8th avenue after the latter was riding eastward with an auto allegedly driven by Maurice Hunkewald, 1849 University avenue. They said that Cook ran into the car and that from the evidence they had received to date they had no intention of pressing charges.

A coroner's inquest will be held to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the accident. They will meet in Andrews Brothers chapel Friday afternoon to be sworn, and they will adjourn until next week.

Henry Hunkewald came to Edmonton from Kent, England, a few days ago. He worked overseas with the 4th Battalion. He leaves his wife, one son, William Henry; three daughters, Helen, Olive and Gladys, all in England, and two brothers, William in Vancouver, and Maxwell in England.

Funeral services will be held at 10 p.m. Saturday from St. Luke's church, the Edmonton cemetery.

Rev. W. H. Hatfield will officiate, and Andrew McWhirter will be in charge of arrangements.

Dauber May Prove Worth in Preakness

By HARRY GRAYSON
BALTIMORE, Md., May 13.—If Dauber, the blunderer, or Maurice Peters, aboard him, can manage to make a few long mistakes, Willie duPont's stretch-running son of Pennant should win the Preakness, May 14.

Ten days ago Herbert M. Woolf, the Kansas City department store tycoon, didn't think enough of Lawrin to pay a $10,000 ransom for his capture as a Preakness entrant. For in the historic Preakness fixture, the fastest of all American racehorses this year at $70,000 added, Lawrin will not be favored by the big bay he chased home in the Kentucky Derby. And with Staghorn in the barn, it appeared as though Lawrin and Dauber had nothing more than old-fashioned and laid down those last long yards at Churchill Downs. Dauber came from nowhere to be second, to Staghorn in the $300,000 Santa Anita Derby in late February. Dauber is eventually coming from nowhere to be second, to Staghorn in the $300,000 Santa Anita Derby in late February. Dauber is eventually coming from nowhere to be second, to Staghorn in the $300,000 Santa Anita Derby in late February.

Camera Depicts Unset That Thrilled Churchill Downs Throng Lawrin's Bad Start --- And Grand Finish

None of the wise-money boys who skipped carefully over Lawrin's name when they doped the 64th Kentucky Derby had any reason to worry about their bets on towering as the pack came into the quarter, and as seen above, Lawrin (No. 1), indicated by arrow, was in the truck and badly boxed against the rail. But he was not without the Man in the Derby as he was in the stretch. He was not without the Man in the Derby as he was in the stretch. He was not without the Man in the Derby as he was in the stretch.

they were off in a merry-ground wing past rivals ahead, creeping slowly up to the felling leader, Menow. Menow passed, the race seemed all theirs. But the worst was yet to come when Dauber shot out in a homely challenge that gained continuously on the pounder Lawrin until they flashed over the finish line in the order above—Lawrin first, Dauber a close second, Carl Wait noting out Menow for third, and Staghorn's underling, The Chief, fifth.
